Dear Reader

When I was asked to write the editorial for issue 3/2020, I gladly accepted. Now that I'm sitting in front of my computer, I don't quite know where to start, especially as I'm writing this in the middle of the coronavirus crisis, and you won't read it until the summer. Much currently remains unclear and uncertain. If you look the word "crisis" up in the thesaurus, you'll find the synonyms catastrophe, critical situation and disaster. In Chinese, however, the term is made up of two characters: one means danger, the other opportunity. So, despite the crisis, I would like to take the opportunity to present the latest stamps to you.

COVID-19 is an ever-present issue for Swiss Post, too. Its special stamp and accompanying donation campaign are a clear demonstration of its commitment to social responsibility. Read more about this on page 5.

At the time of writing, it is still unclear whether the UCI, the governing body of world cycling, will be able hold the Road World Championships in Switzerland this year. However, by issuing the special stamp to mark this major event, we are hopefully sending out a positive signal. This issue also features the "Ceneri 2020" se-tenant. The opening of this tunnel will complete the final Swiss stage in the north-south axis. Speaking of transport, we are issuing the "125 years Basel electric tram" special stamp. We also pay tribute to Globi – who still brings joy to lots of children, despite his grand old age – with two stamps. We've got something special for those with a sweet tooth, too: our two special stamps are dedicated to the transformation from cocoa bean to chocolate, or from bitter to sweet. Unfortunately, they don't smell of chocolate.

Smart city is an increasingly important term. Four internationally acclaimed street artists present their personal interpretation of this theme.

Finally, even in times of crisis there are still special occasions. Send your greetings, invitations and other well wishes with the perfect stamp for the occasion. The person receiving your message will be delighted.

All that remains for me to say is stay safe and healthy and enjoy exploring the colourful world of stamps.

COVID-19 Solidarity

The "COVID-19 Solidarity" stamp reflects Swiss Post's commitment to the cohesion of our society. The proceeds will be donated to Swiss Solidarity and the Swiss Red Cross. These organizations support people who are in urgent need of our help.

Every day, countless staff at Swiss Post work to ensure the provision of essential services. Swiss Post is issuing a stamp to promote solidarity during the coronavirus crisis. All proceeds from sales of the stamp will be split between Swiss Solidarity and the Swiss Red Cross.

The stamp was created at very short notice and designed by Berne-based studio nulleins kommunikationsdesign. The graphic design professionals designed the stamp at a safe distance from their home offices.

The stamp symbolizes solidarity during the coronavirus pandemic: with Switzerland at the center and the rotated cross revealing a shining globe.

It costs only the surcharge of 5 francs per stamp, while Swiss Post will bear the face value of 1 franc.

The stamp is available as a sheetlet of ten stamps. It can only be ordered mint, as there is no related special cancellation.

The stamp is not included in the subscription, and no accompanying philatelic products are available.

Special events

Supplementing the special stamp set issued in 2018, the four new "Special events" motifs are perfect for congratulations on births and weddings, or for sending mail expressing condolences and gratitude. But they're neutral enough for other events, too.

It's not just the content of the stamp motifs that differs from the last set, but also their style. The core message on all four motifs is the golden letter. It symbolizes the importance and value of letters. The most eye-catching elements are the black and white birds as bearers of the letter. The background of each stamp is monochrome and contains features related to its particular intended purpose.

With tongue-in-cheek humour, the stork represents births – as well as birthdays and greetings in general. This means the stamp can be used to send congratulations on exam results, christenings or a new home.

The swan motif refers more generally to themes such as love or a thank you, which also makes this stamp perfect for weddings or Mother's Day. Meanwhile, the swallow is traditionally a symbol of farewell, grief, travel or retirement – but also represents a new beginning or a reunion. These songbirds can be used to adorn any letter of friendship, especially thank-you letters.

North South

Ceneri 2020

The opening of the Ceneri Base Tunnel in December 2020 will mark the completion of the New Rail Link through the Alps (NRLA), turning the long-held dream of a flat rail link through the Alps into reality.

Postal card set

The NRLA provides Switzerland with modern, high-performance rail infrastructure on Europe's north-south corridor – and an environmentally-friendly alternative to road transport and travel. The opening of the Ceneri Base Tunnel is not just the final part of the Rhine-Alps corridor, an epic feat of engineering, but also a symbol of northern and southern Europe moving closer together.

The design of the special stamps highlights this aspect in particular. On the left, a freight train is travelling through the Netherlands. On closer inspection, its destination can be made out – the port of Rotterdam. On the right, a passenger train is arriving in Milan, represented by the world-famous cathedral.

The two special stamps are linked by a gutter which shows the Ceneri Base Tunnel. Here the Alps are not a barrier between north and south, but are instead depicted as nature – an allusion to the climate-friendly mobility that the tunnel promotes.

2020 UCI Road World Championships Aigle-Martigny

The UCI Road World Championships will be held in the Aigle-Martigny region from 20 to 27 September 2020. This is the first time the event has ever been held in French-speaking Switzerland.

The World Championships were organized at short notice after plans to hold the event in Vicenza in Italy were abandoned. However, the organizers have pulled out all the stops to deliver an outstanding event. This is all the more important, as Aigle, home to the UCI headquarters, is seen as the home of world cycling. The town is also the starting point for the road race. The route then continues to Sion and from there back to Martigny, where the Col de la Petite Forclaz, the pinnacle of the course, awaits riders.

The image on the illustrative special stamp is only peripherally inspired by this route. The stamp focuses primarily on the rural depiction of the two regions, with the vineyards of Vaud on Lake Geneva and the mountains of Valais.

Lavaux appears golden to reflect the autumn season. A cyclist from the Swiss national team can be seen in the foreground, while the peloton can be seen chasing hard in the background.

Chocolate – from bitter to sweet

Chocolate

Cocoa bean

Chocolate is an important symbol of Switzerland. However, the journey from the fruit of the cacao tree to melt-in-the-mouth temptation is a long one. This refinement process is being recognized in two special stamps.

The fruits, which grow in the tropics, are harvested twice a year and each contain 20 to 30 initially white cocoa beans, which are dried after fermentation. The raw cocoa is then cleaned, broken down, roasted and ground. The resulting cocoa mass is mixed with sugar and cocoa butter. The result is the basic ingredient for chocolate. Milk chocolate is made by adding milk powder or condensed milk. Cocoa itself is anything but sweet. The Aztec word "xocóatl" – the origin of the word chocolate – actually means "bitter water".

The two motifs were designed by Berne-based graphic artist Karin Hänni.

Street-Art – Smart City

"Smart city" is a term that covers many different facets and aspects. With four spectacular special stamps, Swiss Post has now lent it some artistic flair.

The idea is irresistible: four internationally acclaimed exponents of street art – three male artists and one female – were given free rein to produce their personal interpretation of what the term "smart city" means to them. Four sheetlets have been created which reflect the concept's wide-ranging aspects.

There is no universally applicable definition of precisely what "smart city" signifies. It is instead a general term referring to a wide range of activities, ideas, innovations and technologies, which all have one thing in common – the holistic, environmentally-friendly and socially-responsible development of urban areas.

125 years Basel electric tram

The first electric tram began running in Basel 125 years ago. Much has changed since – but some things have remained the same.

While horse-drawn trams had been running since 1875, the electric "Basler Strassenbahnen" (BStB) – the first tram operated by a government authority in Switzerland – was launched on 6 May 1895. When the line was first put into operation, it ran from the central railway station over the Middle Bridge to the old Badischer Bahnhof station on the Riehenring, which is now the exhibition center.

The stamp features the very first electric tram in Basel, as well as the Flexity Tram, which is currently in use. The Bankverein building can be seen in the background. The building, as well as the nearby tram stop, still exists today. It was an important location right from the outset and is now served by no fewer than seven lines, five of which are operated by the Basler Verkehrs-Betriebe (BVB).

The motif was created by Basel-based graphic artist Marco Trüeb, who has already designed various stamps, including most recently the special stamp to mark the 1,000th anniversary of Basel Cathedral.

Robots

Species

Globi

If Globi were anyone else, he would be one of Switzerland's senior citizens by now. After all, he first appeared in 1932. But because he's Globi, he still tackles the latest issues, which children find inspiring and enthralling in equal measure. That's also true of the two books whose 2020 covers appear on two special stamps.

The educational edition "Globi und die Roboter" (Globi and the Robots) was published at the end of April. It explores digitization, artificial intelligence and intelligent machines, explaining how everything works in a way that appeals to children. The book covers all aspects that the children themselves can relate to.

The educational edition "Globi und die neuen Arten" (Globi and the New Species) was published two years ago. In this book, children learn that Christopher Columbus was one of the first people to take animal and plant species to the New World. Numerous examples describe which types of food immigrants could serve in their new homes, why some species are more aggressive than others and which ones adapt and integrate into their new surroundings.

It is not the first time that Swiss Post has issued Globi special stamps. A stamp costing 0.70 francs was issued in 1997 to mark the "Globi bei der Post" (Globi at the Post Office) edition. The stamp was a huge success, and the book sold over 80,000 copies within a year.

Globi is particularly popular in German-speaking Switzerland and brings together young and old. Everyone can recount their own Globi adventures, has explored new worlds with Globi, has learned something from him or experienced or discovered something new with him.
